

LifeBridge Health Teams with Cognizant to Digitally Reimagine Physician and Patient Communications

Co-Innovation with New Cloud-Based Communications System Drives Efficiency, Satisfaction Among Doctors, Hospitals and Patients

TEANECK, N.J., April 19, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Cognizant (NASDAQ: CTSI) today announced it is working with LifeBridge Health, a leading health system in Maryland, to further innovate on a new communications system serving the LifeBridge network of more than 1,700 physicians, their patients and regional health facilities. Built on Cognizant's Onviva software as-a-service (SaaS) platform, the system combines customizable software with 24/7 phone and online access to clinical specialists, providing integrated care coordination between medical providers, as well as personalized communication between patients and their care teams.

Cognizant's Onviva platform is a cloud-based, omni-channel, HIPAA-compliant software platform with robust data encryption capabilities. Initially implemented in summer 2015 for a discrete group of use cases, the program has expanded to include all LifeBridge physician groups and service lines. LifeBridge Health and Cognizant are now piloting new features across the LifeBridge network, including electronic distribution of patient education materials and telemonitoring of patients after discharge.

With the Onviva platform, patients have self-service access to consultative resources and information to manage their healthcare, including appointment reminders and simplified physician referrals. Doctors receive near real-time, customized communication about their patients through preferred channels – including HIPAA-compliant text message, email, fax or phone call – facilitating better care coordination and transition of care.

Other specific benefits LifeBridge Health's network has realized from using the Onviva platform include:

- Increased patient interaction after hospital discharge. Nurse agents contacting patients while they are still in the hospital to confirm a preferred method of contact (e.g. phone, email, text) and set expectations for follow-up communications has led to increased patient follow-through, appointment scheduling, medication adherence and follow-up with primary care.
- Reduction in appointment no-shows. The number of no-shows to follow-up appointments has declined 15 percent. The new system enabled the agents to provide transportation to follow-up appointments, and gave the team the flexibility to add transportation options as part of the post-hospitalization support.
- Streamlined management of acute care patient transfers. Transfers to LifeBridge Health hospitals from other care facilities have more than doubled with the process being managed through a single integrated call center.

"The healthcare system is complex, with many people coming together to care for a patient. Coordinating that care and communicating with all those stakeholders can be a challenge," explained Jonathan Ringo, M.D., interim Chief Operating Officer at Sinai Hospital of Baltimore and Vice President at LifeBridge Health. "We need innovative solutions to meet those challenges, so we are pleased to partner with Cognizant to use this customized software platform, combined with the 24/7 call center of nurse agents, to provide a suite of services that enables both patients and physicians to have their needs met."

"We're pleased to be partnering with LifeBridge Health to transform communications across their network and help them drive stronger relationships among the patients, physicians and providers," said Krish Venkat, President of Healthcare and Life Sciences at Cognizant. "Healthcare organizations today face unprecedented challenges. Those on the forefront, like LifeBridge Health, are increasingly transitioning to as-a-service platform models that enable them to enhance patient and physician satisfaction, while helping to optimize operational efficiencies and lower costs. Cognizant's Onviva platform provides the digital convergence of people, business processes and technology to better connect physicians, patients and our own call center clinical staff in real-time, helping to facilitate better care and higher satisfaction."
