

Consulting U.S.: Cognizant Opens New Accelerator Office in Boulder, Colorado

"Colorado is home to a number of our clients," said Sean Middleton, Senior Vice President and President, Cognizant Accelerator. "And we expect to continue to grow and invest here as both our development needs and client needs increase."

Excerpts from Consulting U.S.' article:

"New Jersey-based technology and management consultancy Cognizant opened an Accelerator global technology center and innovation hub in Boulder on February 7. The Cognizant Accelerator division's business and tech experts spearhead a new technology development and invest in emerging external startups. The new center will employ 100 professionals.

'We are thrilled to welcome the Cognizant Accelerator global technology hub to Boulder and I thank Cognizant for their investment in Colorado's technology community and the people of our state,' Colorado Governor Jared Polis said. 'We are proud of how Colorado has become a home for top technology companies and startups alike.'

The Accelerator outpost will engage in the division's mission of new product development and venture investing. In past years, Cognizant Accelerator has been particularly involved in AI, blockchain, and IoT development. According to the firm, the Boulder Accelerator team will also be the focus for the company's software development work."
