Cognizant receives “Best of Consulting 2022” award in Germany

Mohammad Kahloon, Stefan Schüle, Henrik Stadge, Fabian Lerch (Cognizant). Photo by Frank Beer and Tim Frankenheim

Business magazine WirtschaftsWoche honors Cognizant with highly respected award in the category “Purchase & Supply Chain Management”

Cognizant today announced that it has won an industry award for its consulting business in Germany. WirtschaftsWoche, leading business publication in the country, honors the company with the “Best of Consulting 2022” award in the category “Purchase & Supply Chain Management”. The highly respected and established accolade has been awarded for the past 13 years and honors first-class consulting projects with the awards “Best of Consulting”, “Best of Consulting Mittelstand” and “Best of ConsultingBlue Chip” in various categories.

Each year, WirtschaftsWoche provides a comprehensive consultant check to identify Germany's best management consulting projects and to create clarity in an opaque market. The check reviews the project success of consulting firms – including reputation, operating results, and co-operation / collaboration – and supports customers in finding the ideal consultant for their next project. The “Best of Consulting” award focuses on established consultancies with an annual turnover of at least €10million.

“We are beyond proud to receive the ‘Best of Consulting’ award for our state-of-the-art supply chain management project from WirtschaftsWoche”, said Alexander Broj, Vice President Consulting, Central Europe region at Cognizant. “Cognizant has strengthened and expanded its consulting business within the last years and the award underpins our vision to guide our customers with expert advice on data, automation and human-centric design through difficult economic times and support them in becoming modern businesses that are ready for anything.”

---

https://news.cognizant.com/Best-of-Consulting-Award-Germany